Managing REACH: Supplying goods into the EU, managing your SVHC obligations

22 March 2012 – Lea Marston Hotel, Sutton Coldfield, B76 0BY

Nobody knows more about REACH.

Who should attend?

This event is aimed at importers, manufacturers, and retailers of articles, whether as finished products or for further assembly within the EU, who need to gain a better understanding of their obligations under REACH and how to comply.

- ✓ Do you know what an SVHC is?
- ✓ Have you heard of the Candidate List?
- ✓ Do your products contain substances on the Candidate List?
- ✓ Do your products release substances which need to be registered?
- ✓ Will you be obliged to notify ECHA about any substances?

If you need to know the answer to any of these questions, and learn some practical “next steps”, then this is the workshop for you. This event will be of value to anyone who is managing the REACH compliance activities of the supply chain within their company.

Book before 24 February for an “early bird” discount.

Why attend?

The REACH Regulation applies in certain cases to “articles”, which means pretty much anything that isn’t a chemical: clothing, furniture, motor vehicle parts etc. Every product is made from substances, and substances in articles need to be “registered” if they are intended to be released.

As part of REACH, the inclusion of Substances of Very High Concern (SVHCs) in the Candidate List has raised fears amongst importers and suppliers of how to identify articles which may contain 0.1% of a substance on the list.

Furthermore, you may have obligations under the REACH regulation to tell not only your customers about the presence of these substances, but also to notify the European Chemicals Agency (ECHA).

During this day we will bring you the very latest information on what REACH means for articles and explain what you need to do to comply. We’ll also provide you with some tips on what to tell your customers and when, and explore some of the practicalities of notification to ECHA.
